Twenty-Eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time
October 9, 2022

My Good People,

Church fairs have traditionally been held in Autumn as a celebration of the harvest. As most of society has moved away from an agrarian culture, we have reduced our dependence upon nature and pridefully replaced it with a reliance upon our own abilities. But the two things we desire most: life and love, are not ours to control. For no man can create a single second of time; we cannot gift a deceased loved one a continuation of life, nor can we love (self-donation to the beloved) until we first have life itself.

Catholicism proclaims that fruits of the earth are not produced by us but are given to us by a loving God; thus, people of faith should be aware that what we can control, what we have dominion over, is very small. This is at the heart of 'childlike faith,' and results in an abundance of peace and joy. For God giveth and He taketh away. Therefore, as generations of families gather together on the River to celebrate life, let us first and foremost return thanks to Almighty God for what He has generously bestowed upon His beloved creatures.

In Service to Christ and His Church,

Fr. Charlie

Office of Life and Justice: This week's collection will be used to assist Catholic Charities of Central Louisiana which serves as the charitable arm of the diocese and focuses on three primary initiatives: mental health, disaster response and basic needs. Their mission statement was formed which highlights the heart of our apostolate: "Catholic Charities of Central Louisiana strives to be good stewards of life by empowering individuals, families, and communities to become self-sustainable, recognizing the dignity of all people." Visit www.cccenla.org to learn more. Please be generous.
